Reap What You Sow: Harvesting Support Systems
July 29 – 31, 2010
Raleigh, North Carolina

The National Youth Leadership Network is excited to announce the dates for a new hands-on training opportunity. The training focuses on creating your own support systems. Support systems are teams of people that help make your goals realities. This event is created for young people, parents, siblings, friends, allies, teachers, community support providers, and more.

Reap What You Sow: Harvesting Support Systems is the title of the training. It will be held July 29 – 31, 2010 in Raleigh, North Carolina. SAVE THE DATES and REGISTER NOW! For more information, visit our web site www.nyln.org. There will be a link at the bottom of the page for more information and registration. We will also have an Information Walk-About Session on Friday, July 30, 2010. If you are interested in hosting a table, please visit our web site and find the Information Walk-About form.

This training program is possible thanks to a grant. This grant is through the US Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), Administration on Developmental Disabilities (ADD).

The National Youth Leadership Network (NYLN) is a youth-driven, youth-led organization. We are a formal non-profit. NYLN is made up of young leaders with disabilities. We live throughout the United States and its territories.

NYLN promotes youth leadership and education. We teach young people how to advocate. Our goal is to make sure that young people with disabilities know how to set and reach their own goals.

For more information, visit the National Youth Leadership Network at www.nyln.org. You can also contact Betsy Valnes, NYLN Executive Director, at 1-866-480-6565 or bvalnes@tie.net.
